Category Definitions

Athlete – would normally be expected to have been an Olympic medallist, World Champion or a World Cup winner in the Elite Category of their discipline or have achieved high-level results over an extended period of time. Athletes would normally not be nominated for MTBA Life Membership until one year after they retire from Elite level competition in the discipline for which they are being considered.

Non-Athlete – nominees would be expected to have contributed to the sport of mountain biking over a long and sustained period of service and may include coaches, trail advocates, staff and administrators. Non-Athletes would normally not be nominated for MTBA Life Membership until one year after they have stepped down from the position(s) from which their service has generated the nomination.
